locality where it shall be held. the situation in the Near East still is far more strained than Western states-

far more strained than Western statesmen seem to suppose.

The downfall of Mr. Lloyd George has tended to relieve it somewhat, but distrust of European diplomacy is so deeply rooted in the Turkish Nationalists that if the resignation of the British Government should involve an attempt to postpone the conference until after the elections the Turks would regard it as a maneuver to rob them of the fruits of victory.

The fanaticism of the National Assembly at Angora was aroused by allied efforts to locate the conference in western Europe. Of the 320 members of the assembly 200 are "Hodjas"—Moslem pricests. This religious element is particularly chauvinistic, and Mustapha Kemal himself, though partially a dictator, had to take it into account.

Consequently the Nationalist chiefs maintain their demand that the conference be held somewhere in Turkish territory, where Kemal may take part personally, and the National Assembly meet during negotiations. They suspect the Allies of trying to prevent Kemal's attendance and to delay the conference in the hope that the Nationalist army will disintegrate.

It is dangerous to awaken such suspicions. After the occupation of Thrace, the military position of the Kemalists will be far stronger than it was at Mudania. The force of "gendarmerie"—in reality picked veterans—will be the nucleus of a new army. Rafet Pasha's words to the cheering crowds in Stamboul are significant: "You Turks, lift, up your heads. Seek out your enemies. They are slinking away into the dark corners. It is mere talk about justice. Gird your nerves, and sharpen your bayor ets!"

sird your nerves, and sharpen your baygrets!"

Kemal and his generals do not consider the conflict over; and many Europeans and Americans conversant with the enormous difficulties confronting the conference and the web of intrigue in which it is becoming enmeshed have regarded the date and the locality of the conference as of tremendous importance.

The decision is a test which will show whether the desire for cooperation with the Western world outweighs Oriental nationalism and Russian Bolshevism at Angora. Much, if not all, depends upon the policy of the new British Cabinet.
But if the Allies, after putting their miltury prestige into fatal jeopardy in the recent crisis, should be ill advised enough to seek to recover their losses by secret diplomacy the result may be disastrous.

ARMENIANS PROFESS LOYALTY TO KEMAL

Good Treatment Promised if They Give No Provocation.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 21 .- The vicar of the Armenian Patriarchate here paid an official call today upon Rafet Pasha, the newly appointed Military Governor Thrace, and expressed the loyalty the Armenian community toward the emailst Government, asking the Governor to inform the Angora authorities at the Armenians were prepared to operate with the Turkish Administration and adding the request that the overnor convey the good wishes of the remenian nation to the Nationalist As-

Thomas Stephanes, a Greek American with a passport showing he had lived in Washington, D. C., rounded up a hundred refugees in a burning village near Malgara and led them on a trek toward Macedonia. He expressed the opinion that if the United States Government would send the necessary ships to carry them across the Atlantic all of the exilee from Thrace would go to America and make good citizens.

WARS NOT ON SOVIET

Constantinople, Oct. 21 (Associated Press).—Enver Pasha, former Turkish War Minister, is in excellent health at Sanmarkand, but he has given up his struggle against the Soviets. Enver's emissary, Mufid Bey, who has just arrived from Tills, quickly denied the various reports that Enver Pasha had been killed in battle, as reported.

PARIS, Oct. 21 (Associated Press).—
The Near Eastern peace conference has been definitely fixed for November 13, at Lausanne, Switzeriand, in a final exchange of messages by France, Great Britain and Italy. The invitations will be sent out immediately. The British Cabinet crisis, it is said here, will not interfere with this final arrangement.

Raises Dangerous Question.

C'NSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 21.—There is danger in delaying the Near East peace conference, and in the haggling over the locality where it shall be held, for in spite of the Mudania convention the situation in the Near East still is the Maritza River. These armed women had joined their men folk in repelling an attack upon them by Turkish irregulars, with regulars in the bleak hills near Adrianople. The line of trudging refugees extended in an unbroken mass several miles along the route of flight when the Media, on the Black Sea, bore down upon them. The fight lasted an hour and two refugees were killed. AFTERNOON COSTUMES AND HATS FOR YOUNG LADIES

A most attractive costume for wear on formal occasions in the daytime is made with a skirt and jacket of a soft, beautiful brown veldyne: the new and original side effects introduced into the skirt are copied directly from a recently imported Parisian model; the lower edge of the jacket and collar and cuffs are of brown beaver; the beige crepe de chine blouse which has a very low waist line is delicately embroidered with a tracery of brown silk and gold threads.

A scratched felt hat, matching the beige shade of the blouse, with edging and band of brown velvet and a pheasant feather falling gracefully from the turned up brim to the side, has been especially designed to be worn with this afternoon costume.
